Event Report

Prof. Shurlly focused on Experiential learning methodology as it fast tracks the development of new and reinforcing behaviors that teams can use to become agile, decisive businesses and help managers develop the skills to lead effectively. This process enables teams to meet, get to know each other and work out a common purpose together.

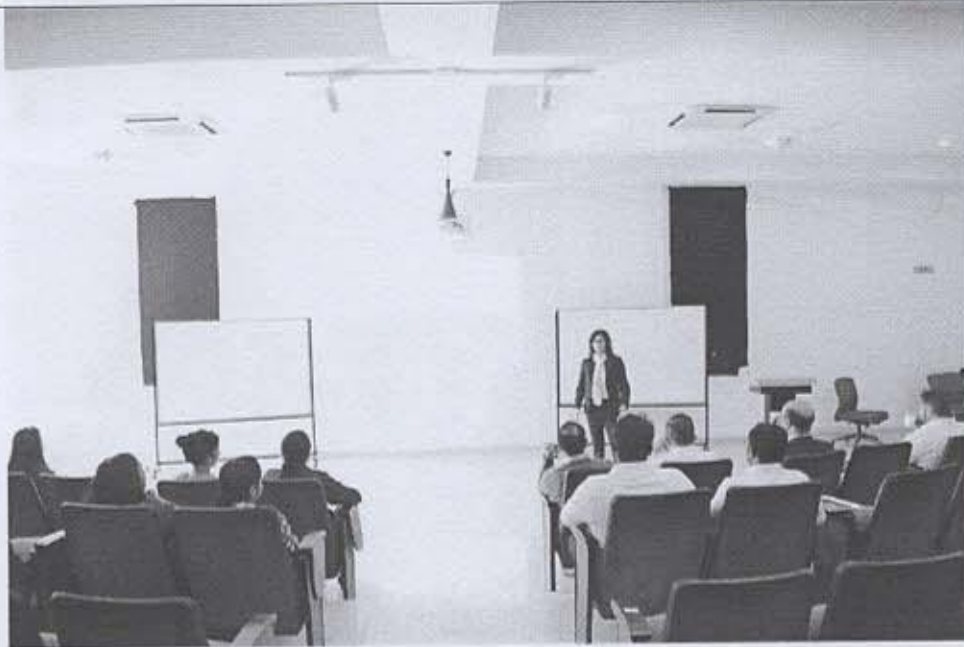

Experiential learning is a dynamic method to team building that aims to promote trust, communication, and collaboration among team members. In contrast to conventional training approaches, which frequently center around lectures and presentations, experiential learning involves participants in practical exercises and thoughtful dialogues to foster active learning and the development of new skills.

During the workshop, participants were enlightened that in order to accomplish common objectives, experiential team building usually entails problem-solving tasks, role-playing games, or outdoor activities. Through these exercises, team members learnt to collaborate, conquer challenges, and gain knowledge from both achievements and setbacks in a nurturing and engaging setting.

Experiential team building is a hands-on approach that fosters collaboration, communication, and trust among team members. Through interactive activities and reflective discussions, participants developed practical skills such as leadership and problem-solving while building cohesion and addressing team dynamics. This dynamic approach helped enhance team effectiveness and performance by providing real-world learning experiences in a supportive environment.

Overall the programme was a success.
