Event Report

Seminar by Dr. John E Spillan was on “Global Supply Chain”. An eminent scholar, Dr. Spillan is a Professor of Business Administration at the University of North Carolina at Pembroke, USA. In his speech, he began by defining what a supply chain is and emphasized how supply chain management is among the top three business functions worldwide. He presented a graphic illustration of the global supply chain networks and proceeded to show seven rights of a customer which he believes form the core of what the supply chain represents which are Right Product, Right condition, Right quantity, Right Place, Right customer, Right price, and Right time. He then provided a definition of a global supply chain and talked about the complexities of a supply chain and the relationships that are to be maintained in order to have an established supply chain. He addressed the challenges that arise from uncertainty and the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on the global supply chain. Finally, he took questions from the audience which lasted for about ten minutes, before concluding his speech. The session was a valuable experience for the audience as they got some idea about the intricacies of a supply chain.
