Event Report

On August 10th, 2018, the International School of Management Excellence (ISME) organized a captivating event titled "Stage Fright". This event aimed to provide a platform for students to overcome their fear of public speaking and stage performance, fostering their confidence and communication skills. With an enthusiastic participation from students and faculty alike, Stage Fright proved to be a resounding success.

Role-playing exercises were conducted to simulate challenging interpersonal situations, such as conflict resolution and negotiation. Participants were assigned roles and tasked with resolving conflicts through effective communication and problem-solving skills. This activity helped participants develop empathy, assertiveness, and conflict resolution skills.

Group discussions were organized on current affairs and trending topics. Participants were divided into groups and encouraged to express their opinions while respecting diverse viewpoints. This activity promoted critical thinking, active listening, and effective communication in a collaborative setting.
